A Message from the Principal!

America is the great “melting pot,” a rich blend of cultural traditions from all over the world. Parents must help their kids prepare to live, learn, and work in communities that will become even more diverse. Teaching tolerance is important not just because it is part of our American heritage, but because the person who learns to be open to differences will have more opportunities in education, business, and many other aspects of life. In short, your child’s success depends on it. Success in today’s world and tomorrow’s depends on being able to understand, appreciate, and work with others.

We all want our kids to grow up with a good circle of friends, and playing is key for young children. The good news is that almost all kids struggle to play with others as they negotiate the balance between their desires and that of others. It’s normal. And as a parent, you can do plenty of things to help your child learn to play well with others. Your social butterfly will grow his wings in no time! (Education.com)

- Talk to your child about friends a school and invite friends over.

Playing and Learning!

Play

Learning to play gives children practice over what they are learning!

Tools for Triumph – Always say thank you!
